and The TaxPayers' Alliance invite you to attend
a morning seminar:

Tax Harmonisation Versus Tax Competition: Which Promotes Prosperity?

Guest Speaker:

Dr Daniel J Mitchell, The Heritage Foundation, Washington DC

Discussants:

Andrew Allum, Chairman, The TaxPayers' Alliance;

Allister Heath, Economics Editor, The Business

Graeme Leach, Chief Economist, Institute of Directors

Mark Warner, Partner, Stanbrook & Hooper

Chairman:

John Blundell, IEA Director General

on: Tuesday 3rd February 2004
from: 10.30am until 11.30am (coffee and tea served from 10.00am)
at: 2 Lord North Street, London SW1

With the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) meeting with low-tax jurisdictions in London to discuss so-called "harmful tax competition" during 3rd-5th February, the IEA in conjunction with the recently launched TaxPayers' Alliance (www.taxpayersalliance.com) is hosting a seminar on this important issue.

Dan Mitchell of the Washington-based Heritage Foundation, one of the world's leading experts on tax competition/tax harmonization issues, will lead a discussion investigating whether tax harmonization or tax competition contributes more to economic growth. In addition to reviewing OECD initiatives, the discussion will examine various EU tax harmonization measures.

RSVP (acceptances only), to IEA reception, either by e-mail to: events@iea.org.uk or by fax (020 7799 2137), or by phone (020 7799 8900). By post: The Institute of Economic Affairs, 2 Lord North Street, London SW1P 3LB.
